

Selected Articles for Tech Enthusiasts:

1. TechCrunch: "Meta acquires voice startup Play AI"

Meta has acquired Play AI, a voice technology startup, signaling its continued focus on expanding its metaverse capabilities and enhancing user interactions in virtual environments.

2. Ars Technica: "Seagate's massive, 30TB, $600 hard drives are now available for anyone to buy"

Seagate has launched its 30TB hard drives, utilizing heat-assisted drive technology after decades of development. These high-capacity drives are now available for purchase.

3. TechCrunch: "Mira Murati's Thinking Machines Lab raises $12B in funding"

Mira Murati's AI startup, Thinking Machines, has secured $12 billion in funding, positioning it as a major player in the AI race with ambitious plans to revolutionize machine learning.

4. Ars Technica: "BYD has caught up with Tesla in the global EV race. Here's how."

BYD, a Chinese electric vehicle manufacturer, has narrowed the technology gap with Tesla and is poised to outsell the company globally this year.

5. TechCrunch: "Uber taps SafeGraph for robotaxi partnerships"

Uber has acquired SafeGraph to expand its robotaxi partnerships globally, marking a significant step in advancing autonomous vehicle technology.

6. Ars Technica: "Nvidia chips become the first GPUs to fall to Rowhammer bit-flip attacks"

Researchers have discovered that Nvidia GPUs are vulnerable to Rowhammer attacks, highlighting critical security concerns in modern computing hardware.

These articles cover major developments in AI, cybersecurity, hardware innovation, and electric vehicles, making them essential reading for tech enthusiasts.